ABOUT EXPO

The current production of sugar in Bangladesh is only about 5% of total demand.

About 20% demand is fulfilled by jaggery production mainly from sugarcane and the remaining 75% of total requirement is fulfilled by importation. One of the major reasons for low sugar production is due to lower sugar recovery due to very old machinery. The state-owned sugar mills were set up in the 1960s, but there have hardly been any fresh investments in modernising the factories to improve their production capacity.

The government of Bangladesh is planning to spend Tk 5,000 crore for modernization of these sugar mills
